Materials

Pencil or fineline

and some old family photographs

Warm-up exercise

1. Give the 5 shapes on the next page 5 different noses and 5 different sets of eyes.
2. Can you make one of them look angry by giving them eyebrows?
Tip: Ask someone to make an angry face and see what happens to their eyebrows.
3. Pick another one and make them look surprised.
4. Now give them mouths and ears.
5. How about some hair?
6. Lastly, add details (freckles, wrinkles) and maybe some accessories (glasses, hats ...)

Now that your hands are warmed up, you are ready for your wall of family portraits.

Look at the photographs you've gathered and then fill the frames on the following page with portraits of your family members.

Can't fit all of them on the next page? No worries, just grab another piece of paper and draw some frames of your own before filling those with portraits too.

Family Stories

Once you have gotten everyone's portrait down on paper, it's time to gather your family.

Now it's the grown ups turn!

Ask them to tell you stories about the different members of your family. They can be famously funny stories, tales of bravery great and small or just a favourite memory of times past.

Maybe you like to share a story too?
